

Toddler Ice Skates

Contributed by joewunschseo
Thursday, 04 February 2010

Well the weather has been getting warmer and warmer lately so there is not much winter sport season left for this year sadly. But one great thing that was just added to my town is a real ice skating rink that was built for a new pro hockey team, but when they are not using it the owner is going to have it open to the public to help raise funds by people going there to skate. My son is very excited about this new addition to our town as this year I purchased him his very own pair of toddler ice skates for him to use. We are going to go there this weekend for him to use them, this is his first time so it should be interesting teaching him how to use them properly.

Another item I wanted to touch in is this brand new purchase I made at home depot last week for this new type of instant screen door that can be installed easily by any person in under 2 minutes, on top of this it can also be taken down all without doing any damage to your home or structure, making it the perfect addition to every apartment and condo home owner because you legally could not install a regular screen door in this situation.